- The program prepares students with a multi-faceted curriculum that highlights information gathering and application in today's rapidly changing global environment.
- In accord with the liberal arts emphasis on civic and cultural literacy, students reflect on the global political, social, cultural, and economic dimensions of international affairs.
- Students also examine legal and ethical frameworks that inform how the world is constructed.
- The undergraduate curriculum is also shaped by the Barry University mission, so that students learn how international concerns can be channeled for collaborative service projects and to pursue social justice.

Required core coursework (27 credit hours):

ECO 201 Macroeconomics

ECO 202 Microeconomics

POS 209 Comparative Government and Politics

POS 325 International Relations

Foreign language component (6 credit hours):

New elective coursework (12 credit hours):
